SURPRISE SPRUNG

Ballinger Pinchot Inquiry Resumed After Adjournment of Two Weeks.

SCHEME OF MR. BRANDEIS! WANTED TO GET FIRST CHANCE

AT DEFENDANT.

Washington, March 25.-The Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry was resumed today after an adjournment of practically two weeks. As soon as the committee met this norning, Attorney Brandels, representing Louis R. Glavis and others, sprang a sur-prise by requesting that Secretary Bal-linger be called as one of his witnesses. Mr. Brandeis said at first he wished to identify by Mr. Ballinger, two letters he desired to introduce in evidence at this time. Questioned further by members of the committee as to his intent, he admitted he desired to conduct a general examination of the accused cabinet official.

Counsel for Mr. Ballinger objected to this and called forth from Mr. Brandeis the remark that from his letters he had always supposed Mr. Ballinger to be ready to appear whenever and as often as anyone connected at the inquiry desired.

Some members of the committee seemed to this Mr. Pallinger as the person most the care in the day, and social festivities will be renewed with increased vigor.

Extensive preparations for special Easter services have been made in all of the Salt Lake churches. There will be beautiful floral decorations, and special music and sermons, appropriate to the day. some members of the committee seemed to think Mr. Ballinger, as the person most interested in the inquiry, should have opportunity to make his statement first in his own way and not subject himself to a cross-examination before being examined in chief. The matter was passed over, to be decided later in executive session.

It was thought at first Mr. Birch's testimony would be largely perfunctory in character and would follow the lines of his recent statement made before the Senate committee on territories. Members of the committee the however, become deanly interested in day. tee, however, become deeply interested in the operations of the Alaskan syndicate and they plied the witness with questions from every possible angle. questioning was intended to show that the Guggenheims plactically control Alaska. Mr. Birch stoutly denied this.

"Well," he was asked by Representative Graham, "if the Guggenheims get control of the coal lands in Alaska what would there be left?"

Mr. Birch said he did not think this was a fair question to ask him. He admitted that the Guggenheim interests were large, that they had invested some $15,000,000 already and had contracted, for the expenditure of other millions. There had been ne returns from these investhad been no returns from these invest-ments as yet. But the syndicate "had the Cunningham claims represented an actual value of $25,000,000, Mr. Birch declared it was just as sensible to say the icebergs in Alaska were of inestimable value. The icebergs, he said, would be valuable if they could be brought to market in this country. So it was with the coal, but first the transportation facilities had to be provided.

It was evident today members of the committee are growing irritable and this irritability extends to counsel. There was frequent clashes and both Mr. Brandeis and Mr. Vertress apologized at the close of the session for impatient remarks.

BELLE LONDON'S COOK BEATEN FOR SQUEALING

Robbed by Woman and Attacked by Watchman, Chef Employs War Stratagem.

For crying out that he had been robbed of $11, John Halner, a cook emsome day on which the resurrection of Christ is commemorated all over the the stockade, was beaten nearly into civilized world, after which the social whirl again breaks out, and when spring fashion is to be seen in all of watchman for Polle London Bouting face of Bell London's watchman. It required four stitches to close the wound on Reuter's nose. Halner is un-der arrest, charged with assault upon Reuting with a deadly weapon.

The case, however, is to be thoroughly investigated by Chief of Police S. M. Barlow, who has been planning a trip down to the stockade ever since he was ordered to "stamp out" the resort by the council. The high-handedness of Belle London's watch-man in the promotion of crime within the stockade has on various occasions been called to the attention of police officials. Belle London has always pro-tested against the maintenance of regular policemen within the precincts of her stockade.

It is the claim of Halner that a woman inmate in the house of vice in which he worked had watched the steady increase of his bank roll until he had $11. Then she swooped down on him and got the money.

When he protested he swiddenly discontinuous When he protested he suddenly discovered that he was an undesirable citizen of the stockade, and with oaths and foul abuse Watchman Reuting began to bounce a heavy walnut police-man's club on his head. He says that he made his complaint to the watchman in a peaceable manner, when the latter

The Cunningham Claims.

As to the Cunningham claims, Mr. Birch produced the option that a committee of the claimants had given to Daniel Guggenheim July 20, 1907. He declared this option had been accepted by the Guggenheims December 7 of that year. The claimants, however, had never lived up to its terms. Cunningham, he said, in January or February, 1908, had contended that the Guggenheims themselves had voided the option by changing their railofficials in the prosecution of their work, but they will also, in the opinion of leputy commissioner, be the means of cre concerns to raise their standards.

TWO MORE VICTORIES FOR MILK ORDINANCE

Two more victories were won for the milk ordinance of Salt Lake yesterday when the appealed cases of James H. Howard and David Howard were dismissed by stipulation before Judge T. D. Lewis of the district court. Both milkmen had been arrested for selling milk without a license. They were found guilty in police court and each fined $100. They determined to make these test cases of the city ordinance and appealed to the district court. Yesterday, however, the appeals were dropped with the payment of $100 by each milkman. Both are now elling with licenses

Saltair Pavilion the Scene of Merrymaking — Two

Crowded Trains. It was some crowd which journeyed out to Saltair Friday evening. It was a big good-natured crowd which took into consideration the fact that by going on the excursion they helped just a little bit more in the campaign which the retail clerks are waging just now for early closing. It took two special trains to transport the crowd to the beach and both were loaded. The first train of eleven coaches left the depot at 8 o'clock and there was not a seat vacant. The aisles and almost every convenient space were occupied by somebody who was desirous of reaching the beach as soon as possible. The second special departed a few minutes after the first. On this train there were nine coaches and they were also crowded to their capacity. It was some crowd which journeyed out were nine coaches and they were also crowded to their capacity.

As soon as the train stopped at the beach there was the usual stampede for the gates. The pleasure seekers goodnaturedly jostled, pushed and shoved with all their might to see who would be the first to enter. Everything was serene about the place. The pavilion and the other attractions looked just the same, although the pavilion was enclosed Friday evening to keep out the gale which blew continually from the lake. Out around the dance hall could be discerned a few dilapidated bathhouses, recently toppled over by the wind, while the work of construction at various spots was noticeable. But the dance hall was the attraction Friday evening. Everyone was dance hungry, really craving for the music to begin. The huge crowd stood in banks along the sides of the hall anxiously awaiting the first strains of a waltz or two-step from the orchestra. When the Montgomery Military band sent the first strains around the rafters there was a mighty scramble. Partners were avail. owded to their capacity.

Others strolled about the place, looked at the stars and mumbled incoherent sayings. The ride from the resort was uneventful.

The ride from the resort was uneventful. On the return trip the majority wanted to sing, and sing they did. Some of them howled. When the trains drew up to the little depot on Second South street a tired but happy crowd poured from the coaches and raced for the waiting street cars. The first train returning arrived at 12:30, while the last arrived about 1 o'clock, just too late for many to catch the last car home.
